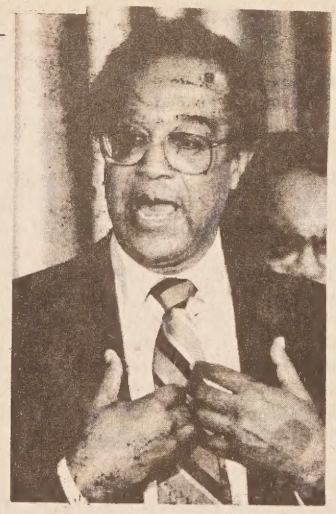
Administration tries fence-mending with Blacks



HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce

Forty Black Republicans have met with President Reagan's cabinet members in an Administration effort to improve its poor relationship with the Black community.

They met over a three-day period with all the cabinet officers except the secretaries of labor and defense, who reportedly were ill.

The meetings were organized by Reagan's top Black -- Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Secretary Samuel R. Pierce Jr. The sessions began just days after Pierce was again charged with discrimination against Blacks in his department.

Those charges were lodged by four high-ranking Blacks who complained they were given meaningless jobs.

A study released last February by the Merit Systems Protection Board concluded HUD had the highest discrimination rate of any federal agency. And in early November, a judge blocked planned HUD layoffs including the dismissals of 83 workers, 44 of them Black.

"The racial aspect of this thing is overwhelming," said Buford Macklin, who is HUD's director of administrative services. He earns about $59,000 yearly, but said he has only had two work assignments in 13 months.

Pierce has appointed a seven-man task force to study race relations in his department.

Pierce claims the Black community's rejection of Reagan's policies is based on misunderstandings. Those policies have resulted in deep cuts in many social programs, the elimination of others, and rapid increases in the defense budget.

Many of the projects that have been slashed had a relatively high percentage of Black participants.

"It's perception. It's not reality," Pierce said of Black complaints about Reagan's programs.

To some observers that comment indicated Pierce and the Reagan Administration believe Blacks cannot accurately assess the policies that affect them. And even participants at the Republican Governors' Association conference recently held in Kansas City said that position acquits the Administration of committing any failures regarding its relationship with Blacks.

"I believe the Black community is ready to move toward the Republican Party," Pierce added at his press conference.

However, the results of the mid-term election indicate that Blacks voted in strength to defeat several members of Congress who supported Reagan's programs.

Pierce said no Black Democrats or civil rights leaders were invited to the round of meetings because, "frankly, this is a Republican affair. I'm trying to get the Republican Party in better touch with the Black community and vice versa."

That riled some other Black leaders who charged the Reagan Administration with attempting to subvert the established leadership of long-standing Black organizations.

Trying to deny that leadership would only increase the Black community's alienation with Reagan, they warned.

BUSH

Nairobi, Kenya - Vice President George Bush said the United States would press for a "framework for restraint" in Africa that could discourage foreign military intervention in the conflicts of the developing continent.

Before ending his seven-nation African tour, Bush told the Kenyan chamber of commerce the Reagan administration sought a "new and mature partnership" with Black Africa.

The vice president also said Washington was determined to defend human rights, foster economic growth and protect the friends of the West in Africa.

"The goal of the United States is to help establish a framework for restraint and broad rules of conduct which discourage the use of outside force in African conflicts and encourage peaceful settlements for conflicts." Bush said, calling for the withdrawal of 20,000 Cuban troops from Angola.

Bush said the United States had no interest in an East-West confrontation in Africa, which he said could only threaten world peace.

Bush, who left Kenya Sunday for Zaire, the final leg of his Africa trip, said the United States was "fully committed to work for a solution that will enhance regional security and assure Namibia's early independence."

The United States and South Africa have called for Cuba to withdraw its forces from Angola as a precondition for the independence of Namibia, or South West Africa, which has been ruled by Pretoria since World War I.

Bush said America believed Africa had the capacity and will to be master of her destiny and the "President Reagan has over the past 20 months worked to forge a new and mature partnership."

Clearly responding to suspicions about Washington's links with South Arica, Bush condemned apartheid as "legally entrenched racism." But, he said South Africa would "realistically" be part of shaping regional security.

CUTTING OF TREES IN CITY PARK PROHIBITED

A city ordinance prohibiting the cutting of trees in city parks will be strictly enforced furing the holiday season, according to district spokesman Ken Heany.

"We're taking a no-nonsense attitude toward anyone caught cutting down trees this year," Heany said.

Penalities for the offense are either a $90 fine or a charge of petty theft which includes a mandatory court appearance and $530 bail.

"A Christmas tree from a city park could turn out to be a pretty expensive tree," he commented.

BOTTIGER SEEKS TIGHTENING OF JUDGES' JOB DESCRIPTION

Senate Majority Leader R. Ted Bottiger (D-2nd District) wants to make certain that only those judges doing full-time jobs receive full-time benefits.

The Graham Senator said he will introduce a bill in the 1983 legislative session "to tighten up the definition of a full-time justice of the peace."

Current state law allows full-time status to those judges earning at least $15,000. Bottiger's legislation would raise that annual salary requirement for full-time status to at least $30,000.

"Only those justices of the peace working full-time should be eligible for the benefits earned in Washington," Bottiger said and referred to judges' pensions " as a benefit rightfully accorded to those working full-time.

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION

The Veterans Administration has some 750 VA owned homes for sale in the State of Washington

Sale of the VA property may be made to veterans, non-veterans, and investors, according to Donald E. Austin, Loan Guaranty Officer for the Seattle VA regional office.

He also said that VA will make bulk sales of five or more properties to investors.

Sales are on contract and are offered with 30-year terms. According to the VA official, "the current interest rate on these loans is 12% with a minimum down payment. The only closing cost to the buyer is a credit report."

The 750 properties are located throughout the state with the exception of Clark, Skamania, and Klickitat counties. Interested persons should contact a real estate broker of their choice for location and individual terms of the property.

A sales listing is updated every two weeks and distributed to several hundred brokers in the state.

Austin said, "the properties range in price from $20,000 to over $100,000.

PROVERBS 20

A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold.

The rich and poor meet together: the Lord is the maker of them all.

A prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself: but the simple pass on, and are punished.

By humility and the fear of the Lord are riches, and honour, and life.

Thorns and snares are in the way of the froward: he that doth keep his soul shall be far from them.

Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it.

The rich ruleth over the poor, and the borrower is servant to the lender.

He that soweth iniquity shall reap vanity: and the rod of his anger shall fail.

He that hath a bountiful eye shall be blessed; for he giveth of his bread to the poor.

Cast out the scorner, and contention shall go out; yea, strife and reproach shall cease.

He that loveth pureness of heart, for the grace of his lips the king shall be his friend.

The eyes of the Lord preserve knowledge, and he overthroweth the words of the transgressor.

The slothful man saith, There is a lion without, I shall be slain in the streets.

The mouth of strange women is a deep pit: he that is abhorred of the Lord shall fall therein.

Foolishness is bound in the heart of a child; but the rod of correction shall drive it far from him.

He that oppresseth the poor to increase his riches, and he that giveth to the rich, shall surely come to want.

Bow down thine ear, and hear the words of the wise, and apply thine heart unto my knowledge.

For it is a pleasant thing if thou keep them within thee; they shall withal be fitted in thy lips.

That thy trust may be in the Lord, I have made known to thee this day, even to thee.

Have not I written to thee excellent things in counsels and knowledge.

ay-

SOCIAL INSECURITY

Decision-time is nearing for the much discussed social security dilemma. As just about everyone knows by now, the social security trust fund is running short of cash and long-term population trends suggest more than a simple quick fix is needed.

Perhaps the first principle our political leaders should follow in considering the social security issue is to keep cool. Decisions made in an atmosphere of political crisis are often the wrong ones. And despite all the gloom and doom we've been hearing, the system is stronger than its severest critics suggest.

It would be a terrible mistake to make drastic changes in benefit formulas or in the retirement age on the basis of long-term population projections that show a boom in the numbers of the retired and proportionately fewer wage earners.

If demographics suggest the system will be in trouble in fifty years or so, there will be plenty of time to handle that problem. Even the current cash crunch can be handled by interagency fund shifts and temporary steps to handle the shortfall from general revenues.

Perhaps the most important reason for Social Security's current cash problems is almost never mentioned -- the Depression. Almost twelve million people are out of work. If they were on the job, they would be paying social security taxes. The system would be solvent.

Failing that, if revenues need to be increased, consideration should be given to taxing half of social security benefits of retired people whose incomes are above the median. That would represent a small bite from those who could afford it while preserving the system.

And the system's base should be expanded by bringing in all workers. About seven million workers, mostly government employees, are now exempt. Such broadened coverage would immediately infuse billions into the social security system.

'I can remember .

BY RAY WILLIS,
CHILDREN'S SERVICES

At the age of 15, I can remember one of many occasions, primping in front of the mirror, pondering ideas regarding growing up Black, reaching manhood, and wanting to know what the future held. My thoughts were often tainted with confusion and doubt, for it seemed that being a teenager would last forever.

I had many unanswered questions concerning life, yet pretended to know the answers since appearing "cool" to others provided reassurance to me; and all the time hoping my parents wouldn't treat me like a kid.

After listening to various Black leaders in the community speak on the need for racial/ethnic pride and the necessity of positive self-identity for success, I realized that growing older wasn't as simple as I had once envisioned.

With Support from parents, teachers, peers and the Black Community I was aided throughout the turmoil of adolescence and the struggles of gaining a positive self-identity.

The challenges exist for all adolescents, yet for the Black youth, they are compounded by racist barriers, limited support systems and self-imposed derogatory statements.

Is it a coincidence that young Blacks who are unsuccessful in social and academic endeavors show signs of failing to establish a good self-image? The media is filled with reports of increases in Black teenage suicide, crime and substance abuse. Clearly it would appear that the development of a positive self-image for young Blacks is highly vulnerable process.

The Task for those concerned is a detailed re-examination of our goals for socializing Black youths. Change must begin with changes within our community. Focus must be given to the plight of Black teenagers and stategic ways that self-identify can be enhanced. If this is neglected, what will happen to the youths who are now pondering somewhere in front of a mirror?

Cambodian

In 1975, when she was 9 years old, San Pheng was walking with her sister in her village in rural Cambodia. The Khmer Rouge forces saw them and told them to get into the truck. They were taken for a two days' drive and told to work digging irrigation ditches. Pheng's sister died of hunger two years later. Pheng has never seen anyone from her family again.

Pheng is one of many Indochinese youth who have survived the conditions in their native lands and escaped to refugee camps in Thailand. Aided by VOLAGS, or voluntary agencies establisned in the camps to help in the resettlement of refugees in new countries, Pheng arrived at Sea-Tac Airport in September, 1982. With her were 14 other Cambodian unaccompanied minors, youth 18 years old and under who are making the transition to the United States without their parents.

All 15 of the recent arrivals are part of the Unaccompanied Minors Program of Catholic Community Services of Tacoma. In the past, this program has been instrumental in helping Indochinese minors adjust to their new status and a new culture through foster placement in American homes throughout the Tacoma area. In June, Catholic Community Services expanded their Unaccompanied Minors Program to include approximately 40 Cambodian children for foster placement.

However, as part of a unique and new effort, the children are being placed with cambodian families. Many of the children have endured life threatening circumstances and family disruption, and these families patiently provide a caring environment with sensitivity to the trauma the children have suffered.

In addition, the Tacoma Cambodian Community has offered support, such as providing the opportunity for the children to conduct the correct rituals (through the local buddist temple) for family members who have died. This cooperative effort with the Cambodian community as well as American volunteers enables Catholic Community Services to help Cambodian youth make the necessary adjustments to live in this strange, new country.

DELINQUENT PROPERTY TAX REMINDERS

Some 30,000 Pierce County taxpayers will be receiving Christmas cards next week in the form of delinquent property tax reminders from the Office of the Assessor-Treasurer.

These reminders are not a tax statement according to Sheldon K. Cook, Pierce County Assessor-Treasurer, but are of an advisory nature only in the hope that property owners will avoid incurring additional interest and penalites on their delinquent taxes.

Delinquent 1982 property taxes are now assessed a 3 percent penalty for the unpaid first-half and an additional 8% fine for the second half. Those fines are in addition to the 12 percent per annum interest added when the first-half payment isn't made by April 30.

Also, all properties with delinquent taxes for three years or more (prior to and including 1980) will be subject to foreclosure in 1983. Previously the limit was five years.

Property owners may avoid foreclosure and the necessity to pay all delinquent taxes, penalties and interest by paying all 1980 tax and previous tax charges prior to May 1, 1983.

Information concerning delinquent taxes may be obtained from the office of Assessor-Treasurer located in the Pierce County Annex, 2401 South 35th Street, Phone: 593-4666.

Regular property tax statements will go out as usual in mid-February.
